Professional Summary Served over the last decade plus solely as an arbitrator or mediator with certain philosophies. The focus in arbitration is to deliver a smooth process which sees the parties understand exactly what they will need in order to prove their case as well as working to have all needed discovery occur early. When the parties have all the records they need to hold the arbitration, they also have all the records they need to determine if they should look to negotiating a settlement in the matter. As to mediation, it is all about understanding what each party needs - not just as to outcome, but also personally: handholding, devil's advocate. or explainer in chief.

Mediator Experience Officially started serving as a neutral in December 2008. Transitioned to being a full-time neutral on October 16, 2010.

Conducted over 250 mediations which were primarily in the following subject areas:

Insurance Coverage
 Insurance/Reinsurance
 Finance/Investments
 General Commercial and Contract matters
 Employment & Organizational issues
 Real Estate
 Discrimination -- both employment based and ADA compliance
 Labor/Management -- primarily, not limited to, disputes over contributions to benefit plans.

Representative Issues Handled as a Mediator

INSURANCE matters, the primarily issues have been:
 Are there damages?
 How much are the damages?
 Are the damages a covered loss?
 Which policy(ies) cover the loss?
 If multiple policies in effect -- how is the loss divided?

FINANCE/INVESTMENT

Did a loss occur?
 Amount of loss?
 Expertise of investor?
 Duty owed to investor?
 Was there fiduciary duty?
 Other duties or limitations? (Know your customer rule, suitability rule, etc.)

REAL ESTATE (ownership issues listed also apply to all closely held entities).

Is it an ongoing venture?
 If not, how to divide assets?
 If yes, can the parties work together?
 If not, is there a party(ies) who will buy out the others? (May also mean bringing in another investor or a total sale).
 If yes, how best to reset the relationship to move the venture forward?

EMPLOYMENT

Compensation
 Retaliation
 Discrimination

Labor/Management
 Contract interpretation
 Employee contributions to Union benefit plans

Mediator Style & Process Preferences

Having spent 10 years as a trial attorney and far more time in a business setting I truly understand why most disputes should be settled and not litigated. That is why I completed a Masters in Psychology which, combined with my legal and business experience helps me to be the best mediator I can possibly be. It allows me to look at the issues from many different perspectives. Hopefully, I'll be able to continue helping solve problems until I make that final journey decades in the future.

Inveniam semita aut ero (find the path or be it)

My normal practice is somewhere between the Facilitative and Evaluative approach. I look at each mediation as unique as to what the parties expect from me and their desired format. This starts with a pre-mediation session to determine what, if anything, is needed, to help lead to a productive session including any limited discovery and the need for pre-mediation briefs (also determining if such briefs should be confidential or also provided to the other party).

I am happy to mediate both in person as well as becoming adapt over the Covid years with conducting mediations over Zoom. I've also had successful mediations where all discussions were simply caucusing type phone calls over an extended period. Even a couple where all varieties of communication were utilized. It is simply what works best for the parties.
